Yard Chemicals Video Translated to Spanish

A newly translated Public Works video in Spanish is now available on the City of Eugene's stormwater page www.happyrivers.org, and the Latino Lane County Facebook page. The video, narrated by Brenda Cervantes of the Long Tom Watershed Council, highlights how yard chemicals can affect health, especially for children, pets and wildlife.

Currently, the department's stormwater program has a fact sheet about managing paint waste in Spanish and several handouts through the education curricula for elementary students. Other Spanish-language materials are being produced in conjunction with this summer's road repair projects.

Public Works continues to develop materials on projects and programs designed for Spanish-speaking members of the community. The department is currently in the process of creating a web site, www.eugene-or.gov/pwEspanol, to provide easy access to these materials.
