Eugene Airport Partners with The Good Traveler to Offer Carbon Offsets

Eugene — March 18th, 2021 — The Eugene Airport is now a proud partner of The Good Traveler program. The Good Traveler is a first-of-its kind carbon offset program that brings leading airports together and offers passengers a simple way to reduce the carbon footprint of flying.

“Being a member of The Good Traveler program provides options for passengers in our region to offset the carbon impacts from air travel,” said Acting Eugene Airport Director Cathryn Stephens, A.A.E. “We are excited to be a member of this program and are continually looking for innovative ways for EUG to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.”

The Good Traveler is a carbon offset program that works to restore the balance of air travel by keeping greenhouse gases out of the atmosphere. When you buy a carbon offset from The Good Traveler to go with your plane ticket, you are funding the work of people all over the country who are restoring the climate balance. To date, the program has offset over 86,000 metric tons of carbon, the equivalent of neutralizing over 554 million passenger flight miles.

“We’re thrilled that Eugene Airport is such an invested partner to The Good Traveler in supporting projects in reforestation, conservation, renewable energy, carbon capture, and more.” said Erica Eliot, The Good Traveler Co-founder and CEO. “In championing a more sustainable aviation future for their passengers, they’re ensuring that every traveler has the opportunity to reduce their greenhouse gas emissions and support local communities when they fly.”
